

MARIANO MARCOS STATE UNIVERSITY

Building on Brownfield Sites

Mariano Marcos State University has a body build on brownfield sites. MMSU has demonstrated a strong commitment to sustainable and stakeholder-driven development, as seen in its recent infrastructure projects and collaborations aimed at benefiting both the community and region. MMSU's Stakeholders' Forum highlighted partnerships with local, national, and international agencies, which align university initiatives with broader regional development needs.

Furthermore, its digital transformation initiatives, including collaborations with Huawei and Sutherland, support the university's vision of sustainable development through technological advancement. While MMSU prioritizes enhancing facilities that address resilience and stakeholder needs, its approach underscores a dedication to sustainable regional progress.
